Biodiversity

Students will investigate and compare the characteristics of living things via a visit to the Sheldon apiary followed by a stream study. Within a small habitat students will gather and record data to examine the diversity and interrelationships within and among species. There is a pre-trip activity that must be completed prior to the trip.