Next Steps

While the TDSB has distributed more than 70,000 devices to students this year, we know that some students may still require a device for this remote learning period. In those cases, families are encouraged to contact their school when they reopen to arrange for one. Please note that devices will be provided based on availability and may take time to distribute.

Today's news comes at a time when all schools are on winter break, which presents a challenge as I know many of you may have questions about next steps. For in-person schools, teachers will be connecting with students and families on Monday, January 4 to provide more information and begin, what is anticipated to be, the relatively quick process of shifting to remote learning. For students in virtual school, learning will continue as normal on Monday, January 4.

While not unexpected, I know this news will be difficult for many. I want to assure you that we have learned a lot about remote learning over the last 9 months and while there may still be challenges ahead, we will support our students and families to ensure as smooth a transition as possible.

Sincerely,
Kathy Witherow
Interim Director of Education
