

WORKING CLASS HEROES is an inspiring story about three high school athletics coaches whose faith and dedication helped change the face of a school and an entire community. Taking us back as early as the 1920s, Toronto poet Frank Young recounts the story of how the borough of East York grew out of farmers' fields into a heartened and fiercely proud community. Through the early days of the hardscrabble 1930s all the way to present day, we follow the development of a rigorous high school athletics program which has produced countless community leaders over the years.

Learn about the Class of '51 undefeated Goliaths team whose members' respect and admiration for their venerable coaches led to the foundation more than 40 years ago of the singular Hager, Hull, Miller scholarship program that continues - as strong as the spirit that inspired it - to the present day. Working Class Heroes will both inspire and deepen your respect for all things Blue and Gold and all things East York.
