

Good Afternoon Parents and Guardians

I hope your child had a good first week of remote learning. I know there were some challenges, and many of our younger students needed your support. I would just like to thank all of you for supporting your children and their teachers this week. Do not put extra pressure on yourselves to complete all the work or worry about submitting it the next day. We recognize that issues such as access to technology, sharing devices between siblings, and reliable internet access may be issues that you are encountering. As well, we realize that circumstances around COVID-19 are challenging on their own. So prioritize what is important right now – your family’s health and wellbeing.

I’ve had many questions from parents concerning the delivery of technology devices from the board. It could be a few more weeks as this initiative is a large operation. Devices are being claimed from the schools and then catalogued before being couriered to families. You will receive a notice by email indicating the window of time when you should receive the device. We appreciate your patience.

Be sure to visit the board’s list of resources for learning, mental health resources and information on COVID-19 and school closures. www.tdsb.on.ca.

Just a reminder that tomorrow and Monday are holidays, and it is not necessary to do additional work for school.

I would like to take this opportunity to wish those celebrating a Happy Easter and Passover holiday this weekend. I look forward to connecting with you again next week.

Take care and stay safe,

Jason Donaldson
